

MARIN CITY DATA FOR JUVENILE PROBATION

The numbers of youth with a Marin City zip code who are booked into Juvenile Hall has gone down nearly 60% since 2006.

Juvenile Probation staff assess those youth who are referred for probation services. The numbers of youth from Marin City has gone down from a high of 26 in 2006 to 10 in 2010.

Juvenile probation staff assess each case for the risk for recidivism. The high risk cases are the ones that receive the most attention from the Department, both for supervision and risk for detention in Juvenile Hall. In 2006, 16% of all high-risk cases came from Marin City, a figure which is substantially out of proportion to the percentage of all youth that this region of Marin County represents. In 2010, approximately 4% of all high risk cases came from Marin City, which is still higher than a proportional amount, but substantially lower than 8 years ago.
